

First, in general, systems have increased the number of channels of service if one includes a la carte offerings. However, direct before and after comparisons of equipment and service offerings are difficult to accomplish.

Second, operators represent that their a la carte offerings provide subscribers the opportunity to purchase channels individually or in fixed packages at discounted prices. Without additional information on the equipment and other conditions that apply to the individual offerings, it is impossible to determine if these are realistic choices.

Third, the value to the public of certain changes cannot be determined until sufficient time has passed to assess demand patterns. For example, additional outlet charges in many situations have been drastically reduced, resulting in savings for customers with multiple outlets. A future consequence of these reductions is that many customers that did not previously have additional outlets will now purchase them. However, we note that in a number of cases new charges for receiving unregulated premium services on multiple outlets were introduced.

Fourth, the impact on consumers of the restructured "at cost" charges for installation and maintenance cannot be assessed from the survey results. Many operators have introduced monthly inside wire maintenance fees which may or may not have resulted from the unbundling of equipment charges. Operators have also made undocumented changes in their customer service policies and in their promotional hook-up offerings.

V. ASSESSMENT OF THE SUCCESS OF CABLE RATE REGULATION

The goal of the Commission under the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992 is to establish reasonable rates for regulated cable services. The data received in response to this survey suggest that the rules adopted by the Commission have to some extent begun to accomplish the objectives of the Act. Positive results of the survey include the following:

The average subscriber bill for regulated services and equipment declined by 5.9%, adjusting for a la carte services.

The average reduction in the subscriber bill was $1.50. Although the results of this survey cannot be projected on a nationwide basis, this savings is not inconsistent with the previous FCC estimate of about $1 billion in nationwide savings.

Two-thirds of subscribers saw their bills, unadjusted for a la carte, decline for regulated cable services including equipment.

Subscribers are being offered equipment and installation at cost-based rates and unbundled from service. In most cases this has resulted in significantly lower equipment and installation charges.

On the other hand, the data also suggest reasons why not all subscribers received reductions in their bills for regulated services and why the total bills (for regulated and non-regulated services) showed an increase for 30.5% of subscribers.

Basic-only subscribers grew from 3.4% of subscribers to 13.4% of all subscribers as several operators reduced the number of tiers offered by collapsing higher tiers into basic service.

The programming component of the charge for basic-only increased 2%. Generally, the increase in the charge for programming was the result of channel lineup reconfigurations that moved programming services and channels from upper tiers to the basic tier and/or that added channels to the basic tier. The rate per channel for basic-only service decreased by 16.4% because the size of the tier increased by nearly 3 channels.

The charge for basic-only with equipment decreased 5.8% for subscribers with non-cable ready TVs due to the heavy equipment component of this subscriber profile, but increased 2.5% for basic only subscribers with cable ready TVs.²⁹

In a significant number of instances, operators eliminated one or more CPS tiers in some or all of their systems. The channels on the eliminated tiers were moved to the basic tier, to other CPS tiers, or to a la carte, or otherwise were eliminated from the system offerings. The movement of channels from CPS tiers to the basic tier contributed to the overall increase in charges for basic services. In several instances, however, increases in the rate per channel allowed under the FCC's tier neutral regulations caused the basic service tier charge to increase.

Generally, operators adopted tiering strategies which seem to contribute substantially to sustaining the charges for many subscriber profiles at levels fairly comparable to pre-regulation levels.

The movement of channels from regulated to unregulated service, if it results in a net decrease in the number of regulated channels, will increase the permitted benchmark rate per channel to a level above what it otherwise would have been.

²⁹ As discussed above in the section entitled Equipment Component of Charge for Basic-Only, equipment represented a very small component of the basic-only profile for cable ready TV subscribers. The small increase was due to three operators introducing requirements that subscribers take addressable converters and two operators adding unbundled equipment charges to pre-existing addressable converter requirements.

When all the tiers and packages of regulated and unregulated service and an unregulated premium service (HBO) are viewed as separate offerings, savings initiated for one offering tend to be offset by increases or new charges for other offerings.

Some operators previously bundled equipment with some of their service charges. As a result of unbundling of the equipment charges from service charges, some subscribers experienced increases in their monthly bills. The more equipment subscribers paid for on an unbundled basis before regulation, the more likely they were to see significant reductions in bills after regulation.

The net effect of the restructuring of cable offerings has been to reduce the number of channels and CPS tiers available in programming subject to regulation. Overall, the number of regulated channels went down slightly, but for a few operators the number of regulated channels went down significantly.

Many subscribers taking unregulated premium services saw new charges and higher rates associated with these services. This survey detected, but could not quantify, the impact of such new charges introduced since April, 1993, including, for example, inside wire maintenance charges (which may or may not result from the unbundling of equipment charges) and premium service additional outlet fees.

FCC Rate Regulation Impact Survey

This survey is intended to collect data on the impact of FCC rate regulations on cable services and equipment offerings. Operators must complete the following questionnaire for each of the ten largest systems that the operator anticipates being governed by FCC benchmark regulation. The operator should identify, in a separate attachment, any systems that the operator anticipates being governed by cost of service regulation that exceed in subscriber count the smallest of the reported benchmark regulated systems. The questionnaire requests information on rates for regulated cable services, the average per subscriber regulated revenues for the last billing cycle ending before April 5, 1993, and projected average per subscriber regulated revenues based on rates in effect September 1, 1993.

If the effective date of the most recent rate change subsequent to April 5, 1993 was not September 1, 1993, the operator should complete the questions in this survey based on the actual effective date of the rate change. If there has been no change in rates during the rate freeze (April 5, 1993 through November 15, 1993) the operator should supply all data for rates currently in effect in the columns for April 5, 1993.

Responding Official: This survey should be completed by a company official familiar with the development of the rates currently in effect. The data required include subscriber revenues, rates for cable service and equipment and number of subscribers.

Instructions: (A) Complete the attached questionnaire. Both paper and disk forms are being provided. We would prefer the operator use the disk form. The disk file is in the format of Lotus 1-2-3, version 3.1. Please change the name of the file to the first eight letters of the operator's holding company name and enter the data for each of the ten franchises in one file. The holding company name and the name and phone number of the responding official should be written on the label of the disk. (B) Attach rate cards and channel line-ups for April 5 and September 1, 1993.

When and Where to File: The questionnaire and attachments should be returned postmarked no later than October 1, 1993. The return address is: FCC Rate Regulation Impact Survey, Mass Media Bureau, Room 314, 1919 M Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20554.

Help: Call John Hays (202) 634-1798 between the hours 9:30 AM and 5:00 PM EST.

Confidentiality: All data submitted in response to this survey will be considered a part of the public record and will be provided upon request to interested parties. Requests for confidentiality will be considered on a case by case basis.

Line Instructions:

Lines 01 - 08: Enter the specified identification information for each of the ten largest systems that you own and operate and that you anticipate being regulated under the FCC benchmark regulations. For identification purposes, please enter the community unit ID of the largest franchise in each system on line 01. If rates charged by the operator are uniform for all franchises in a system, provide information on the remaining lines of this questionnaire at the system level and enter "system" on line 08. If rates are not uniform for all franchises, provide data for the largest franchise in each system and enter "franchise" on line 08.

Lines 09 - 12:

Description of Service: Enter a brief description to identify each tier of service offered on April 5, 1993 and on September 1, 1993. To the extent not shown on the form, attach a separate paragraph explaining any additions or deletions of tiers. List only the tiers that are subject to regulation by either local franchise authorities or, on complaint, by the FCC.

Charges: The charges should be the rates generally available to residential households.

Channels: Enter the number of channels.

Households: Enter the number of subscribers taking service at the generally available rates. Include subscribers receiving bulk discounts or senior citizen discounts.

Line 13: Enter the monthly charges, number of equipment units, and the number of households with equipment. If an addressable converter is not required to receive the highest level of regulated service, enter zeros in the boxes referring to addressable converters. If a converter is not needed to allow a cable-ready television to receive all regulated service, enter zeros in the boxes referring to non-addressable converters.

Line 14: Enter the charges for installing service for one outlet in a single family residence.

Line 15: Enter the charge for a change in service level (for regulated services only). If no visit is required, enter a zero in the appropriate box.

Line 16: Enter the monthly charge for inside wire maintenance. Enter a zero if there is no charge.

Line 17: Enter the monthly charge for a remote control.

Line 18: Enter the monthly charge for a second outlet that is to only receive regulated services.

Lines 19 -20: Enter a brief description and the monthly charge for any recurring maintenance charge that is generally required to received regulated services.

Lines 21 - 23: Enter a brief description and the monthly charge for any other recurring charge that is required to receive a regulated service.

Line 24: If franchise fees are not included in the charges listed above, enter the franchise fee for the highest level of regulated service. If the franchise fee is included in the above charges, enter a zero in the appropriate boxes.

Line 25: Enter the sum of billed monthly charges for all regulated services. (Round to the nearest thousand dollars). For April 5, enter actual billed revenue for the last billing cycle ending before April 5, 1993. For September 1, enter projected revenue based on rates in effect on September 1, 1993.

Line 26: Enter the total number of customers that received any regulated services. (Enter in whole numbers).

Line 27: Enter the percentages of customers that would experience a reduction or increase in their bill for regulated service based on the rates in effect on September 1, 1993.

² Basic & Cable Programming charges are adjusted for a la carte channels which were moved from regulated services after 4/5/93. Prime Cable, Scripps Howard & Time Warner are listed as non a la carte operators, however, in some of their systems they moved channels to a la carte.
